Peter Kellner founded Richmond Global in 1999. Richmond Global is a firm with venture capital investments in technology and communications in the United States, China, and India. A social entrepreneur, in 1997 Kellner co-founded Endeavor, a pioneering organization promoting entrepreneurship in emerging markets; and in 1992, he co-founded Hungary's Environmental Management & Law Association (EMLA), one of Central Europe's leading NGOs developing environmental law and policy.

Kellner is Chairman of the board of Obopay, Inc., and is a board member of AdChina, Inc., and of Rubicon Global LLC. He serves on the nonprofit boards of Endeavor and Ashoka Youth Venture. He is a Trustee of the Allen-Stevenson School in New York. He is a Member of the Council on Foreign Relations; Crown Fellow, The Aspen Institute; Member, Pacific Council on International Policy (PCIP); Member, International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS); and Member, North America Council of Ashoka. In 2009, he was selected as a Young Global Leader of the World Economic Forum.

He received his undergraduate degree from Princeton University and was a Fulbright Scholar to Hungary after college. He received a Juris Doctorate from Yale Law School and a Master of Business Administration from Harvard Business School.
